BRIEF SESSIONS.

Only Routine Business Done in Legislature Saturday Morning.

TAXATION BILL KILLED

Senate Passes Bill Appropriating $500 for Monument at Monocacy—Members of Senate and House Join a Trip to the Barre Quarries.

Montpelier, Nov. 12.—Brief sessions of the Senate and House were held yesterday forenoon and an adjournment was taken until 2:30 Monday afternoon. Because of the absence of several senators the appointments sent into the Senate on Friday by Governor Bell were not acted upon but were laid over until Monday. During the hour it was in session the Senate disposed of considerable routine business which included the passage of several House corporation bills and the House bill providing for an appropriation of $500 for a monument at Monocacy. The House bill providing for a plurality election of representatives to the general assembly on which a majority of the committee on elections have reported favorably was ordered to lie because of the few senators present.

The House went in at eight o'clock and disposed of what business it had on hand in time for the members to take the train north and south at nine o'clock. Among the bills killed in the House was the one to regulate double taxation on which an adverse report had been made.

Eight new bills were introduced Saturday in the House and one in the Senate. Through the courtesy of Mr. W. S. Rogers, superintendent of the Barre railroad, the members of the House and Senate were given a special train from Montpelier to the Barre quarries Saturday afternoon. Nearly every one who remained in town over Sunday accepted this courtesy and many of them were accompanied by their wives or lady friends.

CRUSHED BY CARS.

Mutilated Body of a Former Marble Cutter in Rutland Yards.

Rutland, Nov. 12.—The mutilated body of James Kent was found in the local railroad yard about 2:30 o'clock this morning. The man was run over by the cars some time early this morning but just how the accident occurred will probably never be known. The body was discovered by Fred Smith, a switchman, who was going through the yard about 2:30 o'clock. Smith first found a hat, a little way further on he found a foot and then a leg and a part of the man's head. The body was found wedged in between the trucks of a coal car with the stump of one leg sticking out between the wheels.

Mayor J. S. Gardner, Chief of Police Newton and Alderman Mangum were summoned and the body removed to the undertaking rooms of John Clifford. The right leg was cut off above the knee, the left foot above the ankle and the whole top and back of the head, including the eyes and one ear were gone.

As far as was learned the last time Kent was seen alive was at 12:30 o'clock this morning when he was at the local depot. It is stated by men who saw him that he was intoxicated at that time. Kent was 25 years of age and was a marble polisher by trade. He was formerly employed at the Vermont Marble company's mill at Center Rutland but since the marble strike last July he had until last week been employed on a lumber job at Shelburne.

He leaves a wife and two daughters, one four years and the other six weeks old. His wife and children are now in North Putnam.
